The Adult Congenital Heart Disease Program (ACHD) at the Peter Munk Cardiac Centre (PMCC) is the first and one of the largest congenital heart disease programs in the world.

ABOUT THE PMCC

In congenital heart disease (CHD), a person is essentially born with a defect of the heart caused by a developmental abnormality of one or more structures of the heart or its blood vessels. These can include narrowed or leaky heart valves, inefficient flow between the heart's chambers, abnormal connection of chambers/arteries, and other similar conditions. While many CHD patients undergo surgical repairs in childhood, the majority of them are not "cured" and continue to need surveillance and further care – sometimes including additional procedures – as adults. In addition, some congenital defects are not discovered until well into adulthood.

Peter Munk Cardiac Centre is the leading referral centre for cardiac patients worldwide with 37,000 visits to specialized clinics and 1,600 open-heart surgeries conducted annually. The Centre has a global reputation for patient centered care, research innovation and advanced education programs with a stellar team of doctors, surgeons, researchers, nurses and allied health professionals who have contributed to transforming cardiac medicine and surgery. For more information on the Centre, please visit: www.petermunkcardiaccentre.ca

Directed by Dr. Ervin Oechslin, the Bitove Foundation Professor in Adult Congenital Heart Disease, the ACHD Program at the PMCC is internationally recognized as the premier centre for ACHD for its successes in care, education and research.

DR. ERWIN OECHSLIN, MD, FRCPC

Director, Adult Congenital Heart Disease Program, University Health Network and Mt. Sinai Hospital; Associate Professor of Medicine, University of Toronto; Bitove Foundation Professorship.

Each year, the ACHD Program at the Peter Munk Cardiac Centre sees 300 new graduates from the neighbouring Hospital for Sick Children. A graduate is a patient born with congenital heart disease who has survived into adulthood – something almost unheard of not too long ago. Along with almost 6,500 actively followed patients, these graduates receive the best possible care from specialists in surgery, rhythm disorders, heart failure, nursing and psychology and social work.

- One 30 second time out per team per game.

PLAYOFF GAMES
